Border patrol career requirements

of the written test, the applicant will be placed on a waiting list. If a position becomes available, the applicant will be contacted, provided that a tentative selection package, and is required to interview the Border Patrol Panel. The oral interview is conducted by a panel of three Border Patrol agents and will test the applicant's decision-making, interpersonal skills and emotional maturity. Prior to the interview, the applicant will be required to submit a medical examination that will include a physical fitness test and a drug test. The applicant's background will also be examined. Once approved for active duty, the recruitment will attend the U.S. Border Patrol Academy for 19 weeks, the longest training program of any law enforcement agency. These include teaching in physical combat skills, aggressive governance, marksmanship and immigration and nationality legislation. For recruits without Spanish fluency, an additional 200 hours of Spanish language teaching is also required. Back to Top Border Patrol Agents (BPAs) are law enforcement officials who enforce federal laws when people or goods travel to the United States. They operate along the borders of Mexico and Canada as well as in the coastal waters of Puerto Rico and Florida to facilitate the flow of legitimate trade. Border Patrol agents are also responsible for preventing illegal immigration, and protecting Americans from human and drug trafficking, terrorism and agricultural pests. A Border Patrol agent works for U.S. Customs and Border Protection. Outstanding agents can enjoy such career promotion opportunities as earning an assignment with the elite Border Patrol Tactical Unit (BORTAC), Horse Patrol, K-9 unit, or Riverine Operations, in addition to other exciting career possibilities, including supervisory positions. Agents perform their duties using a variety of technological tools, such as infrared scopes, electronic sensors, low-light television systems, and aircraft. They are also involved in the field of law, as they provide input to the courts regarding immigration issues such as citizenship applications. Border Patrol agents often deal with dangerous situations, such as coming into contact with armed criminals. While BPAs are similar to customs and border protection officers (CBP officers or CBPOs), and some work duties may overlap, their primary job duties are clear. Border Patrol agents typically patrol international land borders and entry points to apprehend undocumented aliens and smugglers from aliens, while CBP officers focus on facilitating the flow of legitimate trade and travel, determining the permissibility of individuals in the U.S. and preventing the illegal entry of individuals and banned goods.
